Holloways of Ludlow Home

The kitchen specialist looks east to open up new premises in Kent

Words: Ysanne Brooks

Where is it?

A tastefully renovated historic building in the picturesque village of Brasted is the location for a new home concept store.

Why go?

Developing the Holloways brand to include this new store is the brainchild of Holloways's director, Mark Holloway, and Michelle Alger, whose previous roles include Head of Home for Heal's. Chosen for its period features and roadside location, the showroom is situated in the oldest house in the high street, which has been sympathetically re-designed to showcase Holloways's range of hand-picked interior and furniture products, including handmade pieces from artisan designers from around the world.

When to visit?

Open Monday to Saturday, 10am to 5pm.

Karndean Designflooring

Luxury vinyl flooring manufacturer Karndean Design has launched its revamped interactive tool, Residential Floorstyle. Featuring Karndean's full catalogue of wood and stone-effect designs, it's simple to select from the catalogue of roomset images and choose a floor to see how it will look. If you fancy something a little more elaborate then there's a facility to add in design strips, position planks or tiles at different angles or simply compare floor designs side by side.
