Infinity Custom Homes

"The variety of colors and textures Karndean Designflooring offers is refreshing. It's a great solution in both quality and design."

As one of the premier luxury home builders in the greater Pittsburgh area, Infinity Custom Homes strives to provide homeowners with an inspiring and extraordinary home-buying experience. The company's latest development, Forest Edge, is located in the affluent Pittsburgh suburb of Cranberry Township. When the time came to lay out the 9,000 square-foot Austin model home, project designers selected Karndean Designflooring for the home's lower level.

The basement of the Austin model includes a home gym, game area, bar and wine cellar and home movie theater. Because the space houses a variety of areas, designers sought a durable, functional, fashionable and versatile floor. "We needed a surface that could stand up to a lot of traffic and be used in a space that would serve many purposes - without compromising the design integrity of the home," Pearsall said.

After being introduced to Karndean Designflooring by the company's flooring supplier, Brace Flooring, and using Karndean Designflooring in two previous projects, Pearsall was certain she wanted to use Karndean in the model home to showcase the available high-end upgrade options. "The variety of colors and textures Karndean Designflooring offers is refreshing. It's a great solution in both quality and design," said Jill Pearsall.

Pearsall selected Reclaimed Redwood VGW99T, which features subtle, light gray characteristics paired with mid-brown undertones, creating a contemporary rustic look. "It offered a great color and it complemented the 'old world' theme of the home," Pearsall said.

While all model homes experience high levels of foot traffic, it was of particular importance in the Austin model home, selected by Pittsburgh Magazine as the publication's 2017 "Ultimate House." Each year, the Ultimate House showcases leading design trends, brands and products, and is open to the public for tours over a two-week period. The Austin model was toured by nearly 1,500 visitors from the area, and Reclaimed Redwood's 20mil wear layer and K-Guard+ surface protection stood up to the durability test.

Infinity Custom Homes has been so pleased with the performance and reliability of the floors that they plan to use Karndean Designflooring in their next model home as well.
